SOME DISMISS SUITS

Action of Plaintiffs Indicative That Wounds Have Healed—Appoint Counsel for Defendants.

The divorcing of unhappy and matrimonially tired couples of Nodaway county was taken up by Circuit Judge William C. Ellison in the second day's court session today. No protest was entered in any of the twelve cases in which legal separation was granted this morning. Several hotly contested divorce suits however are expected before the twenty-three cases of this nature are disposed of.

The dismissal of two divorce suits this morning by plaintiffs therein, indicated to some of the legal talent about court that the wounds which caused the litigation had healed and all was now peaceful and serene. A few were continued for lack of service and at request of parties involved.

Huddle died two days after a fight with Gunn in a Burlington Junction restaurant last summer. Gunn is alleged to have struck Huddle in the head with a stool, which caused a fracture of the skull from which Huddle died. The trouble is said to have started over the disappearance of a jug of whiskey, when Gunn quit the employ of Huddle, a farmer, last winter.

ASK WOMEN'S AID

COMMERCIAL BODY TO FURTHER "TRADE-AT-HOME" MOVE.

MAY APPEAL TO CLUB

Committee Appointed to Seek Co-operation of Social Associations and Farmers In Campaign.

An active and united campaign to induce a greater co-operation in the trade-at-home movement in Maryville and Nodaway county, will be made by the Commercial club through a committee which has been appointed by the directorate of the club. It consists of Charles S. Hellmers, chairman, Albert Kuchs and Joseph Jackson, Jr.

Plans are now being made by the committee to start the ball rolling within a few days or soon after the return of Mr. Hellmers. He now is in Kansas City and will not return before tomorrow night. A meeting of the "trade-at-home" committee is expected to be called by Mr. Hellmers as soon as he returns, when campaign procedure will be arranged.

One of the moves suggested by C. W. Yehle, who advised the campaign, is to appeal especially to the women of Maryville, for their co-operation in doing all or at least a greater amount of trading in Maryville.

It is believed that by meeting with the various women's clubs and affiliations in the city, a great advantage could be obtained in the trade-at-home movement, as it is claimed most of the out-of-town buying is done by or for women. Not only will proof be submitted by the committee, that all goods can be bought just as cheaply from home merchants.

Figures also will be submitted to show just what extra expense is entailed when a shopper goes to St. Joseph, Kansas City or Omaha, in the way of railroad fare, hotel and dining charges and incidental expenses, if plans submitted by Mr. Yehle are adhered to.

Local express agents report a great amount of incoming goods from the larger cities, consigned both to residents of Maryville and to persons living in nearby towns or on farms. A great amount of merchandise also is said to come via the parcel post.

The appeal to loyalty also will be made by the committee, if present plans are followed. Besides the arguments that goods may be bought here much cheaper, counting expenses incident to going out of town, persons will be asked to support home industries. Particularly at this time is such loyalty needed, said Mr. Kuchs this morning, when the European war is causing a disturbance in business conditions.

SPENDS $617,074 ON ROADS.

Missouri Democratic Administration Exceeds By Half Million.

During the first twenty months of the Hadley administration the amount appropriated and expended on public roads by the state was only $35,970. During the first twenty months of the Major administration the amount was $617,074, a difference in favor of the Democrats of $581,044. Every dollar of this money came from automobile licenses and other sources other than regular taxation. During the same period without any increase in the state levy, the state spent $420,186 more for the public schools than it spent during the same period of the Hadley regime.

Receives Silencer Patent.

Walter E. Westfall of this city yesterday received from the commissioner of patents at Washington, D. C., a patent for a silencer construction for firearms. The patent is for seventeen years. It is a novel construction which silences the usual report incident to the explosion of the cartridge or shell. There is a casing on the outside of the inside working barrel proper and a sliding check valve ahead of the barrel. It is unlike the famous Maxim silencer.

GAME IS THRILLER

AUTO-POLO IS ALL DARING SPORTS IN ONE.

WEEK'S EVENT IS GOOD

Maryville and Springfield, Alone of Missouri Cities, Gets Modern Attraction—is "Taking" Event.

According to advance notices the two games of auto polo, which are to be played here Friday and Saturday under the auspices of the Commercial club, are going to furnish the thrills of a Vanderbilt cup race, a bull fight, a football game, an European war and an aviation meet all combined into two exciting, nerve-tearing contests.

Auto polo, as played under the management of R. A. Hankinson, the originator of the dare devil sport, and the man who is bringing the American and British teams here for an international series, makes the red corpuscles of the spectators play leap-frog. The little cars, especially constructed for the rough game, do about everything, under the skilful guidance of their expert drivers, from the Argentine tango to the Lincoln Beachey loop. They spit fire, belch smoke, sputter noise, stand up and sometimes sit down. Naturally this combination with the actual sport which comes in connection with it, is enough to give auto polo the name of the "tornado sport."

Kansas Is Home of Game.

For auto polo is really a genuine sport. Where it has been played the longest it is the most popular. It was invented and developed in Wichita, Kan., and today Kansas is the stronghold of auto polo, a game never failing to bring out a large audience. Its popularity is proved by the fact that teams have been engaged to play three games in Wichita during the international dry farming congress in that city early next month.

Auto polo attracts. Once a person sees the game he becomes as ardent and enthusiastic over it as the rabid baseball "bug" over the national pastime. When the Hankinson players were touring Kansas and Iowa they were followed from town to town by many persons, who had automobiles and were able to make the short jumps.

The British and American teams which will play here were the sensation of the state fairs at Des Moines, Ia., and Minneapolis, Minn. They played only short exhibitions there in the race tracks in front of the grandstands yet were declared by the fair officials and the newspapers to be the best attraction on the ground, not barring Lincoln Beachey, the great American aviator, who does stunts in the air which put the birds to shame.

Requires Good Drivers.

The game of auto polo depends on the ability of the drivers to skid the cars. On a good, hard level field, on which the wheels will slide freely the clever drivers are able to turn while going at full speed, in a distance of from twelve to fifteen feet. This seems incredible and in fact is almost unbelievable. Yet it is true. However, most of the serious accidents in auto polo occur on the turns. In the skid, if a wheel strikes a soft place in the ground, or a bump, the momentum of the machine is stopped suddenly and the machine goes over.

The players on both the British and American teams are veterans at the new sport and have become quite agile at leaping from the rolling cars and escaping injury, but occasionally one is caught. Just now R. A. Hankinson, the originator of the game, is recovering from a broken arm he received in a game in Milwaukee, Wis., when he was caught under an overturned machine. His brother, Jack Hankinson, a malletman on the American team, is also laid up with two broken ribs he received in Des Moines, Ia., recently, when his opponents' car ran over him, after he had been thrown from his own machine on a sudden turn.

Play for Purses.

The two teams, which are touring the country and playing games under the auspices of fairs, commercial clubs and kindred organizations, play for a purse in each series and in addition receive large salaries in keeping with the dangerous work in which they are engaged. Mr. Hankinson offers a purse for the winners of each series so that he and also the public will be assured that each game played is a genuine contest and not merely an exhibition.

A large inflated ball, slightly heavier, but otherwise resembling a basketball is used for the "punk," as the ivory block is called in pony polo. The mallet men carry heavy clubs somewhat like croquet mallets but much heavier. This combination of an awkward ball and heavy mallets makes it difficult to drive accurately, this fact really making a good game of auto polo.

The Players are Experts.

Were the ball easily driven, the team getting the first lick at ti would have a decided advantage, and would often score before its opponents could get near the goal to block the point-making. As it is the first drive from the center is as likely to go crosswise of the field as toward the goal. This also brings out the fine driving, necessitates quick stops and starts, sudden turns and reversing.

Jack Johnson is the regular driver for the English players, but is ably assisted by Ray Sample. Ray Claypool is the regular malletman, and is considered by auto polo experts as the best malletier who has ever played the game. His substitute is Edward Schrieber, an Englishman with a German name.

Walter "Blondie" Sterling, the regular driver for the American team, is the star of his aggregation. Sterling is a wonderful driver, and accomplishes that which he sets out to do much more often than he fails. For that reason he is always popular with his audiences.

The referee, who has an assistant, is the sole judge of play on the field and conducts the game by means of flags. At the start of the game when the teams race for the ball in the center of the field, he starts the cars with a green flag. A red flag indicates that the ball is out of bounds; a white flag that a goal has been scored; a checked flag that there has been a foul, and a white and red flag waved together, that a period has ended.

Only Six Games In State.

At first pistol shots, whistle blasts and similar schemes were tried for the signals but all of them failed, as the polo cars make so much noise that it is impossible for the players to hear anything except the din and clatter of their machines.

Maryville is fortunate indeed to be able to see the game, as only two series are to be played in Missouri this year ,two games here and four at the fair at Springfield. Then the teams go into Oklahoma and Texas to begin the fall season. The stop was made here to break the long jump to Springfield from Shenandoah, Ia., from which place they come here.

SO SAYS N. I. STAPLES

In Signed Statement Former Candidate Gives Editor Hull "Short and Ugly Word."

As announced in the Tribune last night, N. I. Staples has withdrawn from the race for county judge. Upon that grain of truth the Tribune built a fairy tale as broad as the editor's imagination and as false as his front teeth.

Mr. Staples tells his story as follows:

Burlington Junction, Mo.,
Sept. 28, 1914.

To County Committee of the Progressive Party in Nodaway Co:

Gentlemen—

I hereby withdraw my name from the progressive ticket as candidate for Judge of North District.

I have authorized the Maryville Tribune to publish my withdrawal, but the statements they make in their issue of Monday the 28th, to the effect that, "I said my name was put on said ticket without my consent or without consulting me," is absolutely false, and I made no such statement; and as a matter of fact I went on said ticket of my own accord, signed the necessary declaration of candidacy which is on file in the County Clerk's office, and paid my filing fee as required by law, and I intended to make the race, but am prevented by circumstances which have just arisen.

RE-ELECT STONE, SAYS BRYAN.

That Senator William J. Stone should be re-elected to that position by the Missouri voters, in the general election November 3, is the unqualified opinion of William J. Bryan, secretary of state. In his mouth piece, the Commoner, of the current issue he says in a signed editorial:

"Senator William J. Stone of Missouri has been nominated by the Democrats at the recent state primary for a third election by a majority over both his opponents of about 112,000 and by a plurality of about 150,000. Up to March, 1913, the Democratic party was in the minority in the senate. During his service as a minority member, Senator Stone's work in opposing objectionable measures urged by Republicans and in striving in the interest of the people for constructive legislation along Democratic lines, won for himself an enviable position in the esteem and confidence of his colleagues in the senate and of his constituents in Missouri. Since the incoming of President Wilson's administration, Senator Stone has at all times been the loyal friend of the administration and has rendered valuable services in pushing forward the great constructive work accomplished during this period. He is at the head of the great committee on foreign relations, and ranks next to the chairman of the committee on finance—these being two of the most important and powerful committees of the senate—and he is also a member of several other important committees primarily charged with the consideration of legislation of high moment to the country. There should be no doubt about his re-election. It is of the highest importance that a Democrat's majority should be maintained in both houses of congress, for if that should not be so it would be impossible for the president and congress to move on independently and unhampered in the great constructive work still remaining to be done. But even though both houses remain Democratic, the defeat of the senator from Missouri would still be a distinct loss. This is a time when the country stands in especial need of the counsel and service of experienced and well tried public servants, like the senator from Missouri. Let every Democrat in Missouri make it his business to ensure the re-election of Senator Stone."

CADILLAC COMES OUT NEXT MONTH WITH 8 CYLINDER.

IS EPOCH IN MOTORS

Innovation Engine Has Motors Placed V-Shape—To Be No Higher In Price.

In announcing that its new car is powered with an 8-cylinder engine of the V-type, the Cadillac Motor Car Company becomes the first American manufacturer to develop such a motor vehicle for market. When the 2-cylinder car of long ago succeeded the "1-lunger" its coming marked an epoch in motor building. Great distinction was given the maker of the first 4-cylinder car, and it was believed that the summit of luxurious motor traveling had been reached. Then came the "sixes" with their consecutive explosions and easy riding qualities.

Now an American company announces an 8-cylinder car! Will it be a success? Will it be laughed at? If tradition asserts itself the new car will be a success. One, two, four and 6-cylinder cars have been laughed at in turn, and now more companies are making "sixes" than ever before. The new Cadillac car will come from the factory October 1. The price will remain the same.

Motors Tandem Shape.

The cylinders in the engine of the new motor car are set at an angle with one another and not in a row along the crank chamber. The engine thus presents the appearance of two separate 4-cylinder motors. Two crank shafts are used, placed in tandem, the one having its webs at an angle of 90 degrees to the other. In the V engine, instead of using a second crankshaft, the second four cylinders are applied to the first crankshaft, but are themselves arranged at an angle of 90 degrees to the first set of cylinders. The cylinders fire alternately from side to side. The continuous torque produces an almost utter absence of vibration at any speed.

The cylinder dimensions are 3⅛ bore and 5⅛-inch stroke and the motor will develop sixty horsepower, according to tests by a dynamometer. The hood on the new car will be no longer than last year's model; in fact, the appearance of the car has hardly been changed.

Says German Head Dies Today.

According to one of many predictions made recently by the famous Paris prophetess, Madam De Thebes, Emperor William of Germany will be killed today. She also says that the French will invade Germany October 29, and that the present European war will end November 7.

Her predictions, according to dispatches, are not taken jokingly and with sneers, however, as are most of the saying of prophets, because of her ability the last few months to foretell events. She predicted last January that a European war would break out about the middle of the year, preceded by a sensational (Calliaux) trial and that the pope would die soon after the opening of hostilities.

She also predicted that the Germans would invade France and would get near Paris without taking it, however.

FALLING HAIR OR ITCHING SCALP

Surely Cease When You Use Parisian Sage—Makes Your Hair Soft and Fluffy.

Now that Parisian Sage—a scientific preparation that supplies every hair and scalp need—can be had at any drug counter, or from T. J. Parle, it is certainly needless to have thin, brittle, matted, stringy or faded hair. No matter how unsightly your hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, Parisian Sage is all that is needed. Every trace of dandruff is removed with one application, the hair roots are nourished and stimulated to grow new hair, itching scalp and falling hair cease—your hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life and beauty.

Parisian Sage is surely one of the most invigorating and refreshing hair tonics known. It is easily used at home—not expensive, and even one application proves its goodness.

FURIOUS ATTACKS OF TEUTONS VAIN

French and British For Days Repulse Assaults of Germans.

Paris, Sept. 29.—French and British on the left wing have repulsed for days the attacks of the Germans, who have been endeavoring to take the allied positions by assaults.

Word from the front describes the encounters. On one occasion the French and British held positions within a quarter of a mile from the German front, where they were not in danger from the heavy German artillery and were sheltered from the machine guns unless they came into the open.

One of the most furious German assaults turned upon the trenches occupied by British regiments, which calmly awaited the onslaughts of line after line of Germans, meeting them with sustained rifle and machine gun fire and sometimes at the point of the bayonet, which did great execution.

The British, however, did not by any means bear the whole brunt of the fighting, for the French troops, including a division of the famous colonial infantry and the Turcos, as well as many battalions of French regulars and others composed of territorial troops, also faced successfully prolonged attacks, which were delivered with great fierceness.

ACTIONS BECOME GENERAL

Losses on Both Sides Are Extraordinarily Heavy.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—The correspondent of the Local Anzieger, in a dispatch published here, points out that a decisive turn in the battle which has been raging in the western theater of war need not be expected for some time. Subordinate actions are becoming general, the correspondent declares. The losses of the Germans have been extraordinarily heavy and the fact that those of the enemy have been even greater is poor consolation. The troops are confident that in the end they will win the action.

A long column of French prisoners of war arrived from the direction of Rheims. The correspondent met a column of about 1,000 men, whose faces showed that they were glad to have at last escaped the turmoil and terrors of this greatest of modern battlefields.

Robs Bank Near Utah State Pen.

Salt Lake, Sept. 29.—Within 100 yards of the Utah state prison a masked man held up George A. Goff, cashier of the Sugar House bank, and Clifford Goff, bookkeeper, locked the two men in the bank vault, took $1,525 and escaped unnoticed forty minutes before the two men were able to get out of the vault and give the alarm.

Admits Attempt to Blackmail J. J. Hill

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 29.—Charles Howell is held by the local police for the federal authorities and is said to have confessed that he had prepared, through a series of five letters, to blackmail James J. Hill and the latter's son, Louis W. Hill, out of $50,000 on threats of death.

Kaiser Wants No "Previous" Jubilees.

London, Sept. 29.—On the anniversary of Sedan, according to a story published in the Daily News, the people of Berlin hung out bunting everywhere, but Emperor William ordered its removal, on the ground that it was premature.

Maubeuge Three-fourths Burned.

Paris, Sept. 29.—A resident of Maubeuge, who had been made prisoner, but later escaped, states that Maubeuge was three-quarters burned by the Germans. The forts resisted for a long time the assaults of 40,000 men.

Reduce Merchants' Taxes.

The county court, sheriff and highway engineer forming the board of appeals, which meets annually to hear protests against merchants' tax, adjourned yesterday afternoon. The assessments of two or more merchants were reduced late yesterday afternoon.

The assessment against T. J. Parle of Maryville which was increased by the board of equalization September 7, from $600 to $1,000 was reduced to $800 by the court yesterday on protest of Parle.

Bruce Montgomery, of the Montgomery Shoe company, secured a reduction of $150. His assessment was raised from $1,500 to $1,800 by the equalizing board. It now stands at $1,650.

Ambition.

"When a man becomes wealthy he wants to go to the United States senate."

"Yes, but why do you mention it?"

"I was just thinking of the difference. The rich man's wife's ambition lies in another direction. She wants to purchase a title for her daughter."

"Not always. I know a rich man's wife who would be perfectly satisfied if she could find something to remove wrinkles."

BATTLE IS WITHOUT DECISION

Teutons Pound Away at Allies at Aisne.

ATTACK WITH VIGOR.

London Communication Asserts Without Success.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM GAINS.

General French Declares Situation to Be Satisfactory.

WAR SUMMARY

Furious fighting continues in northern France, where the allied French and British armies are at grips with the German forces in what is characterized as the crucial action of the battle of the Aisne. Beyond admitting this fact the official statements are vague.

One sentence in which there is no "change in the situation" epitomizes the official reports from London, Paris and Berlin. The allies claim to have made slight advances here and there, notably on the heights of the Meuse. The German official statement, however, declares that "reports concerning a victorious advance of the enemy are untrue."

Petrograd reports officially that the Austrian stronghold of Przemysl, in Galica, is completely invested by the Russians and that the main Austrian army is retiring behind the Carpathians into Hungary, pursued by the Russians. Berlin, however, declares that "reports of the fall of two of the Przemysl forts are inventions."

The Austrian forts at Cattaro, Dalmatia, sunk a large French warship, according to a dispatch to the Cologne Gazette.

London, Sept. 29.—The official war information bureau issued the following statement:

"The enemy attacked our line with even more vigor, but with no more success. There is no change in the situation. The Germans have gained no ground and the French have advanced here and there."

The supreme clash of arms denoting the approaching close of the tremendous fortnight of practically unceasing battle along the four rivers which flow through northeastern France has now been in progress over forty-eight hours without bringing a decisive result.

Both sides claim encouraging, though slight, gains. Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British expeditionary force, spent his sixty-second birthday in maintaining what his latest communication to the war office describes as "a satisfactory situation."

Sprinting Distance Apart.

The Germans have steadily met assault with counter assault until the trenches of the opposing armies are only sprinting distance apart. Already there has been some work with the steel in hand-to-hand conflicts, but except at a single point, where they forced a passage across the Meuse, the Germans, half of whose army is kept busy on the Russian frontier, found it impossible to break through the human barrier stretching across France.

In the terrific struggle of the last eight hours the hardest fighting has been, as it was at the battle of the Marne, between the German right and the allies' left.

French Official Statement.

Paris, Sept. 29.—The following official communication was issued: "On our left wing the reports on the situation are favorable. On the center, our troops have successfully withstood new and very violent attacks. We have made some slight progress on the heights of the Meuse. In the Woevre region a thick fog has caused a suspension of operations. On our right wing (Lorraine and the Vosges), there has been no change in the situation."

Nine Counties In Kentucky Go "Dry."

Louisville, Sept. 29.—Nine of twelve Kentucky counties in which local option elections were held voted "dry," as follows: Carroll, Montgomery, Mason, Bell, Boone, Clark, Shelby, Bourbon and Scott. This leaves fourteen of 120 counties in the state "wet."

In Range of Sarajevo.

Cettinje, Montenegro, Sept. 29.—The Montenegrins are within artillery range of Sarajevo, the capital of the Austrian province of Bosnia.

GRAVEST CRISIS IN HISTORY CONFRONTS AMERICAN RAILWAYS

WAR HAS CLOSED FINANCIAL MARKETS OF EUROPE TO THEM INDEFINITELY

The European War has suddenly brought American railroads face to face with the gravest crisis in their history. With greatly diminished receipts and an ever increasing cost of operation their conditions was precarious enough before—but now with the financial markets of England, Germany, France, Austria, Belgium and Holland indefinitely closed to them, it means that they must henceforth finance all their requirements within the United States. Not only that, but in their frenzy for ready gold these countries are frantically seeking to dispose of big blocks of the nearly five billion dollars worth of American railroad securities which they now hold. It was this "dumping" process which forced the closing of the New York Stock Exchange some weeks ago. When it will be able to open its doors again, no man dares prophesy—but when it does it will unquestionably tax our resources as never before not only to maintain the integrity of our railroad securities, but all other classes of industrial investments as well.

President Wilson's Views.

So grave is the situation considered that some days ago a group of Eastern railroad executives laid the matter before President Wilson. After listening to their plea the president dictated a letter to Mr. Trumbull of the Chesapeake & Ohio board in which among other things he said:

"You asked me to call the attention of the country to the imperative need that railway credits be sustained and the railroads helped in every possible way, whether by private cooperative effort or by the action wherever feasible of governmental agencies, and I am glad to do so, because I think the need is ver yreal.

"They are indispensable to our whole economic life, and railway securities are at the very heart of most investments, large and small, public and private, by individuals and by institutions.

"I am confident there will be earnest and active co-operation in this matter, perhaps the one common interest of our whole industrial life.

"Undoubtedly, men, both in and out of official position, will appreciate what is involved and lend their aid heartily wherever it is possible for them to lend it. But the emergency is in fact extraordinary and where there is manifest common interest we ought all of us to speak out in its behalf, and I am glad to join you in calling attention to it. This is the time for all to stand together in united effort to comprehend every interest and serve and sustain it in every legitimate way."

Railroads Lost Millions.

The net operating income of the railroads of the United States for the year ending June 30, 1914, was $120,000,000 less than for the previous year. The gross earnings for the year were $44,000,000 less than for 1913—while expenses and taxes were $76,000,000 more. But heavy as this burden was before, the great struggle across the seas ,carrying in its wake the destruction of untold hundreds of millions of dollars worth of all kinds of property, renders hte situation a thousand fold more serious. It means, in short, that for a number of years to come Europe will have no surplus money for investment in tne United States or elsewhere and that(as has been stated before, our railroads will have to finance their future needs at home. How herculean this task will be may be judged from the fact that the bond and note obligations which will mature between now and the end of next year and which the railroads will have to meet in some way, amount to more than $563,000,000—and this doesn't take a dollar's worth of new improvements or betterments into consideration. These are obligations which were incurred in the past and which must be met as they fall due if the transportation companies are to be preserved from wholesale receiverships and ruin.

Manifestly, therefore, American investors, big and little, will have to come to the rescue—and before they will consent to do this American railroad securities will have to be re-established as a sound, respected and paying investment—and this, on the present basis of railroad earnings is impossible. Believing, therefore, that the impending crisis demands that the railroads frankly and openly lay this whole complicated problem before the people—that they have a heart-to-heart talk with the farmer, the merchant and the banker on the entire railroad question, the careful attention of the reader is invited to a series of articles which will appear in this newspaper during the next few weeks. All that is asked is that you read with an open mind the facts and figures presented, which are largely taken from the records of the Bureau of Railway Economics at Washington, D. C. The rest will be cheerfully left to your sense of what is right and fair.

Farmers Vitally Concerned.

Especially is it to be hoped that farmers whose market facilities and land values are so vitally affected by the railroads will follow these articles carefully for agriculture is the nation's greatest industry and its success is largely dependent upon adequate and efficient transportation facilities. In fact, every interest in the land, whatever its character, is inseparably interwoven with the railroad problem and it therefore deserves the sober thought of all thinking citizens. The morning after war was declared, Congress suddenly awoke to the fact that we were witnout a merchant marine in which to send American wheat and other merchandise across the seas. How much greater would the calamity have been had there been a serious breakdown in our railroads which would have prevented them from delivering tne farmers' products at our ocean ports?

We believe every intelligent citizen will agree that agriculture, commerce, and industry cannot get along without the railroads. On the other hand, the railroads cannot get along without the patronage—and what is equally essential, the good will of the people. That some of those who have been entrusted with railroad management in the past are somewhat responsible for the apparent gulf between the public and the transportation companies is perhaps true. Busy and harassed by the herculean tasks entrusted to their care, there has been too little contact between them and the people. Again, it is undoubtedly true tnat the world of railroad finance as well as other lines of industrial activity has had its share of inexcusable abuses—but just as the public does not hold the banking world or the ministry responsible as a whole for the shortcomings of an occasional black sheep, so the hundreds of honest railroad officials throughout the country should not be condemned because of the misdeeds of the few.

Who Owns the Railroads.

In this connection, it may be said that the railroad world is encumbered with a lot of phantoms which exist only in the popular fancy. For instance, because there have been some half dozen so-called railroad magnates whose names have figured prominently in Wall Street, many people have come to believe that the railroads of the country are largely owned by a few rich men. As a matter of fact, nothing could be farther from the truth. Out of the collosal sum of twenty billion dollars invested in American railroad securities less than five per cent is now or ever nas been in the hands of these men who have figured prominently in the newspaper headlines—while the other 95 per cent is in the hands of four million investors, large and small, who in many instances have put the modest savings of a life time into these securities in order that they might lay away a competency for old ag

When, therefore, the value of these securities is depressed or perchance destroyed, the hardship is ten fold greater upon thousands of every day citizens—upon the frugal mechanic in a New England factory, the widow with her life insurance funds and the countless other citizens in every avocation and walk of life than upon the handful of millionaires, good or bad, who have figured prominently in railroad circles. Thus, for instance, the great Santa Fe system has over 40,000 stockholders and the same ratio holds good in nearly all the other lines. But that isn't all. The hundreds of millions of assets of our great life insurance companies and many of our banking institutions large and small, are invested in railroad bonds — and the moment, therefore, the soundness of these bonds is affected the financial solidity of these myriad institutions is menaced at the same time. Carrying it a step farther, it means that every holder of an old line life insurance policy and millions of depositors in savings and other banks are directly concerned in the integrity of these securities. This only goes to show how vast and overshadowing our railroad industry has become—how they are not merely thegiant arteries of agriculture and commerce, but how closely their welfare is woven into the woof and fabric of the entire nation. Among other things, it should remind us how inter-dependent we have come to be in this mighty republic of ours—that each is in truth becoming more and more his brother's keeper and that we need to think and act carefully lest in our mistaken zeal we destroy those who, like ourselves, need whatever of this world's goods the toil and sweat of years has brought to them.

The Public and the Stockholder.

On the one hand stands the public demanding the highest efficiency of service and lower rates in one and the same breath. On the other hand stand the thousands of men and women who have put their money into railroad securities, pleading that the value of their investments may not be confiscated—and between them, as arbiters stand the managers of the roads—the "hired men," struggling with might and main to render the good service which the public demands and at the same time, in the face of reduced rates and an ever increasing cost of operation, to have something left over at the end of each fiscal year for those whose money has gone into the property, and who, in common with other normal human beings, believe they have a right to protection and a fair return upon their investment. This, in a nut shell, is the triple relation and attitude of the public, the owner of railroad securities and those entrusted with railroad management at the present time—and that the public and the investor may soon come to realize that each has rights which the other should respect and that they may regard each other without suspicion or prejudice from this time forward is the ardent hope of the average railroad manager who ,for some years, has been in the mental attitude of the fiddler in the western mining camp when he yelled out, "Please don't shoot boys, I'm doing the best I can." Adv. (To be continued next week).

THE STATE G. O. P.

"OLD GUARD" LEADERS IN CONTROL OF THAT PARTY.

OLD STANDPAT PARTY

Corporation and Liquor Influences Possess the Republican Machinery In This State.

It is the same old stand pat Republican party in Missouri. Standing patter than ever. Standing so pat, in fact, that the men who pull the strings are appearing in plain view of the audiences, actively engaged in tearing the mask from the creature's face. There no longer is any effort made to disguise how absolutely the party machinery is in the hands of the hide-bound reactionaries and corporation and liquor influences.

The leaders in the party—the men who control the machinery and guide its destiny in the state—boast of the stand pattism of the party. They brag that Missouri, at any rate, is going to lead the way in a return from the "day of hysteria and fads" back to the good old days of "common sense," which, translated, means political parties run for the benefit of the corporations who put up the campaign funds.

Jacob Babler is state chairman. Mr. Babler is an insurance man and was present at the last legislature on numerous occasions lobbying for certain insurance measures. The real leaders of the party in the state are "Liv" Morse of Excelsior Springs and Otto Stifel St. Louis brewer. Around state headquarters they regard the Kansas City district and the Joplin district and the Second district as "obstreperous." The remainder of the party machinery in the state they hold in the palms of their hands.

It is a matter of daily delight and comment around the state headquarters in St. Louis that "Hadley has been put out of business." The real leader of the Republican party in Missouri boasted openly a few days ago that "if Hadley took the stump in Missouri it would have to be in Jackson county, because the state committee wouldn't even bill him out in the state.

Practically all the men Hadley drove to political retirement are back in the game—not breaking in, but in, helping direct the destinies of the G. O. P. in Missouri. A count of noses in the state committee shows that the men of Hadley, once the leader in the party, are outnumbered more than three to one. Some of the candidates, interested in seeing as big a G. O. P. vote as possible, are asking the state committee to invite Hadley to speak

"If he is willing to swallow the present party leadership and go out on the stump to help us, why should we kick," they say.

But so standpat is the control of the party in Missouri they have been undecided whether to ask him to speak or not. Although he supported Taft in 1912, they want to punish and humiliate the ex-governor for leading the pre-convention Roosevelt fight. If Hadley does take the stump he will do it with the knowledge that the party is in control of the very men whom he denounced a few years ago and from whom he wrested the party leadership.

Around the state headquarters they are very much interested in the county unit bill—interested in seeing it overwhelmingly defeated. "Liv" Morse is against county unit; Otto Stifel, the brewer, of course is against it. Morse and Stifel control the party machinery. In St. Louis every ward meeting of workers has its instructions to go down the line against county unit. In fact, that campaign is absorbing as much attention as the success of the Republican candidates.

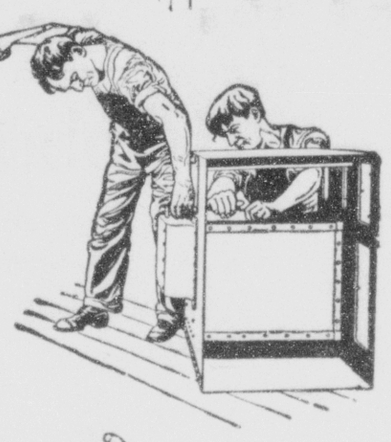
Thomas J. Aikins, Republican candidate for United States senator, makes an excellent candidate for the state committee to back under present conditions. Mr. Aikins held a federal job for sixteen years until he was separated from the St. Louis postoffice. That is a record of achievement that the standpat ring can indorse most heartily.

The Monarch in Course of Construction

Every door frame has Malleable iron every angle bar is Malleable iron.

The Body of The Monarch

The inside wall is annelled steel, the center wall is of asbestos stove board, the outwall of American planished steel.



What is Malleable Iron?

The best soft gray cast iron annealed and when thoroughly annealed becomes the best heat resisting iron used in range construction. Every joint in the Monarch is riveted and is gas and air tight. For the rivets are of the same temperment as the material they hold together thus making the expansion equal. The construction of the fire box either makes or destroys the life and efficiency of the range and this is the Monarch's strongest point. Let us show you why.

For this week we will give with each Monarch a $12.50 set of 20 year guaranteed Aluminum Kitchen Ware.

1914 CROPS EXCEL

MISSOURI PRODUCTS BEAT 1913 YIELD, GOVERNMENT ESTIMATES

CORN MAKES BEST SHOW

Apples and Other Fruit Also Appear Better Than Previous Year—Whole Country Makes Increase.

An estimate which was made this month by the bureau of crop estimates, formerly the bureau of statistics, operating in conjunction with the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture, shows that crops generally in Missouri and the United States range above the estimated yields of last year. This not only includes cereals and hay, but also fruit, vegetables and hogs.

Corn and apples, perhaps, show up better than any other crops grown in Missouri. Oats alone make a smaller yield than in 1913, the government bureau estimates, by about three million bushels.

Compares Favorably.

The estimates in bushels for Missouri and the whole United States for this month and the final one of last year, follows:

Crop	1914	1913
Corn	157,000,000	129,062,000
Wheat	43,333,000	39,586,000
Oats	23,600,000	26,500,000
Potatoes	3,470,000	3,230,000
Sweet potatoes	425,000	336,000
Apples	10,200,000	7,900,000

What Country Raises.

The following estimates were made for the United States this month and last September:

Crop	1914	1913
Corn	2,600,000,000	2,446,988,000
Wheat	911,000,000	763,380,000
Oats	1,120,000,000	1,121,768,000
Potatoes	371,000,000	331,525,000
Sweet Potatoes	55,000,000	59,057,000
Apples	220,000,000	145,000,000

The government estimates that Missouri will produce 1,850,000 tons of tame hay this year to 1,800,000 last year. The United States as a whole will raise 69,000,000 tons of hay in 1914 to 64,116,000 last year, the estimation bureau also says.

Same Number of Hogs.

The condition of fruits, stock hogs and miscellaneous products of the farm this year as compared to other periods in percentages is estimated as follows by the government:

	Mo.	U. S.
Tomatoes—1914	.58	78.5
8-year average	.75	80.5
Peaches—Production 1914	.63	63.0

"A Shine in Every Drop"

The Onlooker

by HENRY HOWLAND

A DESCRIPTION

Her eyes are big and soft and brown;
Her fingers white and slender;
Her brow is stranger to a frown;
Upon her dimpled cheek the down
Is very short and tender.

Her rosebud lips would tempt a priest
Or lure the gravest stoic;
Her smile would charm the savage beast
Her cry for help would make the least
Courageous man heroic.

Her face is fairer than the dawn,
She's purer than the lily;
She is as gentle as a fawn,
As graceful as the stately swan—
And praise has made her silly.

Gratitude.

"My friend," said a good-looking, well-dressed man, when William Henry Younghusband went to the door, "I have called here today to offer you my thanks. A year ago I passed this way. Luck had been going against me. I was down and practically out. A dozen people had turned me from their doors. You heard my story and instead of reading me a lecture gave me a piece of mince pie. By your kind act my confidence in humanity was renewed. I went on my way, vowing that I would yet succeed, and I have done so. I wish to offer the sincerest expression of my gratitude."

"I am mighty glad to see you again and to hear that you have made good. In case you happen to be in need of any more pie, I think we still have the one from which the piece you got was cut. My wife, who loves me dearly, has never been willing to let me tackle it."

A Possibility.

When war clouds shall be seen no more,
When suffragettes may vote at will,
When no dad needs to walk the floor
To keep his teething offspring still,
When men who toil are glad to know
That they earn more than they receive,
When gossips, flitting to and fro,
Say nothing we may not believe,
When no man shall attempt to take Advantage of his fellow man,
When meat trusts shall for mercy's sake,
Sell meat as cheaply as they can;
When publishers shall eagerly
Bid for the poet's latest songs,
When rulers everywhere shall be
Held blameless for their people's wrongs,
When these things all shall come to pass
When men have learned to safely fly,
When no class hates another class,
And it is ne'er too wet or dry—
Then grouchy men and wives who scold
May learn that nagging day by day
Helps little when one longs to hold
The love that frets to get away.

MERELY WISHED TO KNOW.

"Mother, did father have to ask you more than once to be his wife?"

"Why, dearest, what makes you ask such a question?"

"I just wanted to know whether you always answered no before you thought, the same as you do to me now."

A Meeting of Old Friends.

"Somebody told me, the other day, that Maud Dashington was married. You knew her in school, too, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes; I knew her very well there."

"Oh, what a terror she was! I'm sorry for her husband, whoever—— By the way, I wonder who the deuce she married, anyhow?"

"Me."

No Reason to Worry.

"I once played the part of Venus in a pantomime," said the lady who showed her age and was beginning to have a mustache.

"Well, I wouldn't let it worry me," replied the one who was still fair to look upon. "Venus was only a myth, so, of course, you didn't hurt her feelings."

Unfulfilled Expectations.

"That man Tithersons reminds me of a torpedo boat."

"How do you make that out?"

"Ever since he was a boy at school people have been predicting great things for him but he's never done anything worth mentioning yet."

Stiff hands, swollen joints, tired backs and arms, hacking coughs—these are the

Mrs. Thrifty—"Last year we spent over seventy dollars in laundry bills, and this year we have not spent one cent. You see, I had to have a woman in to help me. results which women are suffering all the time, from having to stand over a tub of hot water, in a kitchen filled with steam from a boilerful of clothes, rubbing up and down on a washboard to get the dirt out.

Fels-Naptha Soap changes all this. It works best in cool or lukewarm water. It dissolves dirt, takes grease or stains out of clothes, cleans woodwork, carpets, china and glass—brightens and freshens everything it touches, and gives women time to rest. It works for you while you take life a little easy.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

A good dish for supper, breakfast or luncheon is an omelet, and they may be varied with different seasonings as to make them constantly new.

Savory Omelet.—Beat the yolks of two eggs until thick, add a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley, add seasonings of pepper, salt and onion juice or a bit of grated onion. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a hot omelet pan, stir in the well beaten whites and pour into the pan. Stir with a spoon until it sets. Fold and cook well done on both sides. Cheese may be used instead of parsley for variety in flavor.

An omelet pan is best kept for that purpose exclusively as it must be smooth in order to have a good looking omelet when turned out.

Bombay Toast.—Beat well four eggs, add one half tablespoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of chopped capers, a dash of cayenne. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and when hot stir in a tablespoonful of anchovy paste and the egg mixture. When it thickens take from the fire and spread on thin slices of buttered toast and serve at once.

Cucumber Fritters.—Peel and grate a number of large cucumbers, press out all the juice from the pulp and measure. To each pint allow one tablespoonful of melted butter, three tablespoonfuls of cream, two eggs, salt and pepper to taste, and one-half cupful of sifted flour with a teaspoonful of baking powder added. Beat well and drop by spoonfuls into smoking hot fat. Drain on paper and serve hot.

Tomatoes a la Indian.—Cut rounds of bread and saute in butter until brown on both sides. Cut firm tomatoes in thick slices, two for each slice. Shape a good sized green pepper into strips, dip in boiling water, then drop into ice water. Wipe the tomatoes and fry in hot butter. Lay a slice of each on each slice of bread, season well and sprinkle with the pepper, cover with another slice of tomato. Garnish with yolk of egg hard cooked and put through a ricer, with a little parsley.

NEGLECT HYGIENIC MEASURES.

Rural Schools Lack Proper Safeguards Against Disease.

In a short paper in the weekly public health reports of September 11, the need of proper medical and sanitary supervision of rural schools is emphasized. Despite the fact that the necessary requirements of school hygiene are known, rural communities have been slow to take advantage of trained sanitary advisors. The lack of sanitary supervision in the construction and maintenance of rural school buildings and of medical supervision of the pupils was revealed during the recent investigations carried out by officers of the public health service during which a total of 859 schools in nine states were inspected by service officers engaged in the work during the scholastic year.

In a number of rural communities it was found that the school attendance was small although the child population of these districts was relatively large. It is believed that due attention to the proper construction, equipment and maintenance of school buildings and the proper adjustment of the curriculum to the capacities of the child will largely prevent such absences from school and will reduce juvenile delinquency. The neglect of sanitary supervision of schools in these communities results not only in injury to the child through inability to take advantage of the opportunity for intellectual training by reason of the presence of otherwise preventable and curable defects, but also in actual calculable monetary loss through loss of time in school attendance.

The duty of the state with respect to safeguarding the physical and mental health of the school population is patent. The necessity of this protection to rural communities is great because, according to the 1910 census, there are over 3,000,000 more children in attendance in rural schools than in urban. Furthermore, medical inspections in this and other countries have revealed a high percentage of physical defects among children that are largely preventable and curable. There are numerous children in rural communities who are suffering from defects of this nature, by reason of the want of skilled medical advice.

In the course of these investigations one officer of the public health service found more than 10 per cent of the pupils in twenty-one rural schools suffering from trachoma and more than twenty per cent in eleven schools. The neglect of sanitary precautions will favor the continued spread of this disease and the only hope for complete eradication lies in the education of the rising generation.

In one county, eleven cases of typhoid fever with two deaths were traced to the infected wells of two schools in the year preceding these investigations.

Recommendation is made that wherever full-time health officers are not available because of lack of funds, the rational combination of the duties of health officer with that of the medical supervision of schools would make the employment of such an officer practicable and profitable.

AUSTRIAN ROUT NOW COMPLETE

Right Wing Driven Beyond Carpathian Mountains.

ALL OF ITS ARTILLERY LOST.

Defeated Army Chased Into Hungary by Russians—Official Dispatch From Petrograd Asserts Przemysl Entirely Invested by Soldiers of the Czar.

London, Sept. 29.—A dispatch from Rome says that the following telegram has been received there from Petrograd:

"The right wing of the Austrians has been driven beyond the Carpathians into Hungary, where it is being pursued by the Russians. The Austrian debacle is complete and they have lost all their artillery. The Austrian left wing has retreated to Cracow. Przemysl, in Galicia, is now entirely invested by the Russians."

The operators of a German Zeppelin dirigible dropped a bomb into a school house at Bielostok, Russia, killing eleven children, according to a dispatch from Petrograd to the Morning Post.

SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

Austria Declares Reports of Russian Victories Untrue.

Manchester, Mass., Sept. 29.—The Austrian ambassador gave out the following official dispatch, which he had received by wireless from Vienna:

"The situation in the northern and southern war theaters remains unchanged. Favorable information published by the enemies is wrong; particularly the information from London. The story that two forts of the Przemysl fortress in Galicia have been conquered is entirely an invention. The Austro-Hungarian government has protested to the allies and the neutral powers against the use of dumdum projectiles on the part of the Russians, adding that the chief commandant of the Austro-Hungarian army is at present not thinking of reprisals."

Threatened Famine in Manila Averted

Manila, Sept. 29.—Fears of a coal famine here through the threatened refusal of Great Britain and Japan to permit its import without guarantees against re-exportation has been averted. Japan has instructed local merchants not to sell coal without exacting a bond for twice its value and also insists on consular inspection. The meat situation presented a similar problem. Most of the supply comes from Australia, and there were threats that it would be suspended unless guarantees were given. Governor General Harrison has relieved the situation by promising that the government will guarantee that there will be no re-export of this article.

Double Pay For Army Aviators.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Sensational use of air craft in the great European war added interest to steps ordered by the war department to at once carry out the provisions of the act of last July to increase efficiency of the aviation service of the army. A general order invites unmarried lieutenants of the line of the army under thirty years of age to apply for details of this extra hazardous service, which will entitle them to double pay.

Two Millions For Cause of Suffrage.

New York, Sept. 29.—The residue of the estate of the late Baroness de Bazus, formerly Mrs. Frank Leslie, has been bequeathed to the cause of woman suffrage. The estate has been estimated at $2,000,000. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage alliance, said that she had been informed that she had been named as the recipient of the residue.

T. R. Denounces the Liquor Interests.

Columbus, O., Sept. 29.—To an audience that filled Memorial hall and overflowed into the streets for nearly a block in every direction, Colonel Roosevelt denounced the liquor traffic and urged the voters to support the Progressive party in its stand against the anti-prohibition amendment originated by the so called "liberal interests" in this state.

French Admit Having Dumdum Bullets

Berlin, Sept. 29.—The French government, according to information given out in Berlin, has admitted the possession of dumdum bullets, but explains that they were made only for shooting societies. It is again asserted here that thousands of dumdum bullets have been found on battlefield and that they have been used for war purposes.

French Take Capital of Kamarun.

London, Sept. 29.—The official press bureau issued the following statement: "Operations of his majesty's naval forces on the west coast of Africa have resulted in the unconditional surrender of Duala, the capital of Kamarun, and of Bonaberi to an Anglo-French force."

Railway President Dies.

St. Louis, Sept. 29.—Captain Robert McCulloch, president and general manager of the United Railways of St. Louis and former president of the Chicago City railway, died after a brief illness.

VILLA WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE

Calderon Slated For Provisional President of Mexico.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Assurances from General Villa that he will not be a candidate for president or vice president of Mexico were forwarded to the administration by Consular Agent Carothers.

General Carranza has signified his willingness not to become a candidate if Villa would give a similar promise, and if all the military leaders of the revolution could be also eliminated as possibilities. None of the others have appeared as candidates.

Villa's assurances were regarded as portending a peaceful end of the rupture with Carranza. The formal retirement of Carranza and the assumption of the provisional presidency by Fernando Iglesias Calderon are expected to follow.

Athletics Cinch the Championship.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29.—Now that the Philadelphia American baseball team has cinched the championship of that organization, the national commission will hold a meeting here tomorrow to make final arrangements for the world's series, the first game of which probably will be played on either Oct. 8 or 9. Whether Boston or Philadelphia will secure the first game will be decided by the toss of a coin.

DECLINES CHURCH CALL

Baptist Minister Invited to St. Joseph Church After Committee Visit.

The Rev. Lewis M. Hale, No. 515 South Buchanan street, pastor for the last year of the First Baptist church, has declined to accept the pastorate of the Patee Park Baptist church of St. Joseph, which was offered to him yesterday. Mr. Hale announced this morning that the would advise the pulpit committee of the St. Joseph institution of his refusal to leave Maryville either this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

The invitation to Mr. Hale followed a visit of the pulpit committee of the St. Joseph church made to Maryville September 20. They attended the Baptist services Sunday morning, then invited Mr. Hale to call upon them at a Maryville hostelry. They asked him to come to their church the next Sunday, September 27, and preach to their congregation that day.

At that time no intimation was given that it was desired that he should become their regular pastor there. Being unusually busy with church affairs here, Mr. Hale at that time declined to come to St. Joseph for the day, but expressed the hope that he could later. The committee consisted of George B. Wray, L. H. Fuqua and J. R. Barnes.

On returning home they pronounced Mr. Hale a brilliant speaker and an excellent organizer. He first was recommended to the St. Joseph church board by its retiring pastor, the Rev. F. O. Lamoreux.

In the letter of invitation from Mr. Fuqua, who is chairman of the pulpit committee, he states: "By unanimous vote of the pulpit committee and the recommendation of the entire board of deacons, we hereby invite you to accept the pastorate at our church. * * * * * We sincerely hope that you will give us a favorable reply. There is a great field here and we think you are the one to lead us."

Their retiring pastor expects to reenter the evangelistic field or take a western pastorate.

Mr. Hale came to Maryville in September, 1913, from Louisville, Ky., where he had just graduated from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He also is a graduate of William Jewell college of Liberty. He is of a family of preachers, an older brother and his father both being in that field, in this state and in the Baptist denomination.

VICTORY IS CLAIMED BY BOTH SIDES

Rival Armies Are Very Optimistic.

BATTLE WITH STEEL.

At Some Points the Combatants Struggle Hand-to-Hand.

ARTILLERY CONTINUES BUSY.

Allies Claim Enemy Repulsed and Teutons See Victory.

WAR SUMMARY

For three long days without cessation the Germans have hurled their masses against the French and English in northern France. The French officials' view is that these operations, the fiercest that have yet taken place, are by high command, meaning possibly direct instructions of the emperor himself.

The purpose has been to break through the allies' lines, but both French and English official reports say they have failed. From Paris it is announced that not only have the Germans not been able to achieve their object, but they have lost a flag, guns and men in the attempt.

One of the remarkable things in this great battle, which has now entered upon its sixteenth day, is the spirit maintained by the troops. British, French and Germans have withstood the most terrific shelling the world has ever known, an almost constant rain of bullets from the rifles, and hand-to-hand encounters with gun and bayonet, but all reports agree that they are fighting with the same determination and tenacity as in the beginning.

The German general staff, by way of Berlin, reports that the allies are using their railroads in a general attack on the extreme end of the right flank of the German army. The general staff also reports slight gains on the center of the battle front and an engagement with artillery south of Verdun.

London, Sept. 28.—Along almost two-thirds of the great battle line across northeastern France the armies of the allies and Germany fought fiercely, at some points with the bayonet, and statements from both sides are worded with the optimism which characterizes all these official pronouncements. It was agreed that the allies had continued their advance.

The French claimed "marked progress." The German announcement from Berlin, though insisting that the advance had been repulsed, nevertheless, referred to it as an advance.

Elsewhere along the battle front neither side seems to have achieved any notable success.

Russian Troops Advance.

The continued forward movement of the Russian troops in Galicia, the appearance of German air craft dropping bombs over various places in Belgium and again in Paris and Warsaw and the movement of vast bodies of German troops into Russia by way of East Prussia were chiefly significant in a summary of the events in both theaters of war.

Neither army has achieved anything notable since the allies have reported progress in one direction. The allies at one point claim to have thrown back a desperate advance by the crack Prussian guard, and the Germans insist that, with a weaker force, their right has checked the advance of a mixed French and British force brought up by rail.

Recurring references to bayonet charges seem to prove conclusively that this picturesque and romantic phase of warfare, which it was thought had been killed by the advent of the great guns and other equipment of modern armies, is not all a thing of the past.

The French official communications say that at some points the trenches are only a hundred meters apart; that a small portion of the millions engaged have known the stimulation and thrill of hand-to-hand fighting.

Fierce Fighting Continues.

Dispatches from Petrograd report that fierce fighting still goes on in Galicia, though Cracow, towards which the Russian hosts have been marching ever since Przemysl was invested and the communications cut, has not yet been attacked.

To the north the German invasion is assuming vaster proportions, notwithstanding the Russian war office insists that the Germans are being repulsed at the frontier. It is estimated that the German front extends from the Baltic coast to the southern boundary of Silesia, a distance of about 400 miles.

What opposition the Germans have met is believed to have been little more than a cavalry screen. The fighting centered again along the river Niemen, from Suwalki, Russian Poland, to Sopotzkin. The official statement issued at Petrograd said that the German artillery had been unable to assume the offensive at Sopotzkin and that the German retreat was more or less general.

There has been a dearth of naval news in the last twenty-four hours, and although the fall of the Austrian seaport Cattaro has been reported imminent for several days, that event has not yet been recorded.

The Onlooker

By HENRY HOWLAND

I sometimes marvel, seeing men,
And studying their various ways;
There's Jenks, for instance. Now and then
He does some thing deserving praise,
But drink has tinged and swelled his nose,
His eyes are badly bleared and dim;
With lurching, shuffling steps he goes,
And once some maiden, I suppose,
Was happily in love with him.

Old Waddums, with his heavy jaw,
Has but one purpose and one thought,
Which is how he may dodge the law,
To swell his gains, and not be caught;
Within his eyes no pity gleams,
He crowds his brothers to the wall;
He profits through dishonest schemes,
Yet love once brought him happy dreams,
And some girl was his all in all.

See Spurgeon, with his hairless pate—
Behold him eating with his knife;
Some girl no doubt once mourned her fate
Because she could not be his wife;
And there is Higgins, overfed,
Foolish, foul-mouthed, flabby, fat;
His chins have multiplied and spread,
And some sweet girl, fair and well-bred,
May once have been in love with THAT.

Serving the People.

"So you wish to be elected senator from this state?"

"Yes, sir. I desire to be of service to the people."

"I understand that you have expressed a willingness to spend $50,000 to bring about your election. Do you think that's a proper way to be of service to the people?"

"Why not? Can you think of any way in which the money might be given a wider circulation?"

Too Much.

"How do you like our new minister, Mrs. Metcalf?"

"Well, he seems to be an awfully good man."

"Yes, I really believe he tries to practice what he preaches."

"And he is quite eloquent at times."

"I think he has preached some of the best sermons I have ever heard."

"But I just can't imagine an angel with such whiskers as his."

WHY HE QUIT EDITING.

"You say you were once the editor of a newspaper?"

"Yes, lady, and it was a very bright little sheet, if I do say it."

"How does it happen then that you are forced to ask at back doors for meals?"

"It is merely a case of the irony of fate. I had a printer who was near-sighted, and one afternoon when he made up the paper he got a wedding notice and a murder trial mixed, so that after describing the costume of the bride it said the condemned man almost collapsed when sentence was pronounced."
